Neighborhood Stabilization
Coordinator
City of Albany

Samuel Wells is the Neighborhood Stabilization Coordinator for the City of Albany, NY. His focus is on returning vacant and abandoned buildings back to productive use, in addition to eliminating blight across the City. He recently secured $1.25 million in grant funding from the NYS Attorney General's Office for over a dozen blight elimination and prevention programs in the City of Albany in 2020. Prior to joining the City of Albany, Samuel worked for the Capital District Transportation Authority as a Transportation Planner overseeing demand management programs and analyzing ridership data. Samuel has served on the Board of Directors for the Albany County Land Bank for the past four years.

Sam holds a Master's degree in Urban & Regional Planning and Bachelor's degrees in Environmental Design and Political Science from SUNY Buffalo.
